At Educational Innovations, we love helping teachers come up with new, exciting ways to explore science topics with their students. And let's face it, what child doesn't love dinosaurs and fossils? The fact is, there are just so many ways to bring this subject into the classroom that we couldn't decide on a single lesson that would appeal to all students and teachers.

"There's gold in them there hills!" On a recent trip to Sutter's Mill in Coloma, CA, we got a chance first hand to discover actual gold and learn how to tell the difference between the real deal and tricky fool's gold. Without zooming in, it can be tough to tell the difference, especially when the sun is shining and the water makes everything glisten.

Synchronous spawning is very typical on the coral reef, and often, even when multiple species are present, all corals spawn on the same night. This synchrony is essential so male and female gametes can meet. Corals rely on environmental cues, varying from species to species, to determine the proper time to release gametes into the water.

Tuatara are reptiles endemic to New Zealand. Although resembling most lizards, they are part of a distinct lineage, the order Rhynchocephalia. Their name derives from the Māori language, and means "peaks on the back". The single species of tuatara is the only surviving member of its order, which flourished around 200 million years ago. Their most recent common ancestor with any other extant ...

Join us as we spend a day with the Battle River Railway in central Alberta, tagging along with the train crew to tour the line and touch on exactly what it is that makes a company like this tick. We'll look at the men and their massive machines, and the important roles they all play in keeping the rail cars moving, which keeps the customers happy and hence the income streaming in.
