The Semien Mountains were formed prior to the creation of the Rift Valley, from lava outpourings between 40 and 25 million years ago during the Oligocene period. The volcano is believed to have spread over more than 5000 m² and resulted in a thick sequence of basaltic lava some 3,000-3,500 m thick that was deposited on Precambrian crystalline basement.

In 1990, the Ethiopian government allowed the emigration of the Beta Israel community to Israel. The community, which had been living in Ethiopia for centuries, was resettled in Israel and granted full citizenship. The community is now integrated into Israeli society and has contributed significantly to the country's economy and culture.
